HISTORICAL CONTEXT:
World War II was a major pinnacle in American history. America was at war with Germany, Italy, and Japan. All Americans were impacted in some way, but unlike those with German or Italian ancestry, Japanese Americans experienced forced removal to incarceration camps and the loss of their civil liberties as a result of Executive Order 9066 signed by President Franklin D. Roosevelt on February 19, 1942. Although Executive Order 9066 gave the authorization for the forced removal, the document detailing “who, what, when, and where” that has become synonymous with the forced removal begins with the words, “Instructions to All Persons of Japanese Ancestry Living in the Following Areas . . . .” These orders affected the lives of over 110,000 persons of Japanese ancestry who were living on the West Coast of the United States [two-thirds of whom were born in this country as American citizens].

SYNOPSIS:
In Part 1, students will be introduced to the unit through a close reading of a primary source document, the Removal Notice ("Instructions to All Persons of Japanese Ancestry, . . ."), as they complete a worksheet guiding them through document analysis. Students will share their responses to the worksheet in a class discussion. In Part 2, groups will select a topic from a list provided, research the topic using recommended sources, which will include justification for and against the orders, and then present their findings to the class. In Part 3, students will write an argumentative essay either for or against the removal orders (Essential Question).

PART 1 – 50 MIN. GROUP STUDY AND CLASS DISCUSSION (OF PRIMARY SOURCE)
Instructions to teacher:
This portion of the lesson will be effective if students have no prior knowledge. No warm-up activity is necessary, although the Boot Camp narratives and/or glossary [on www.goforbroke.org] will be valuable resources if needed (e.g., “Executive Order 9066,” “Incarceration Camps,” and “Racial Hostility Toward Japanese Americans Before WWII”).

Introduction (hook):
1. Show Appendix A and B photos.
2. Use or distribute copies of the Photo Analysis Worksheet from the National Archives (http://www.archives.gov/education/lessons/worksheets/photo_analysis_worksheet.pdf) and discuss as a class (class can be divided in half: one group can study Appendix A photo and the other group can study the Appendix B photo).

OR ask these questions
• What do you see or notice?
• What do you think about that?
• What does it make you wonder?

3. After the discussion, say,
   “Imagine that you woke up one morning and found flyers posted around your neighborhood. These posters were orders for you to leave your home for an unknown period and unknown destination with no explanation.”

   “What would be your immediate thoughts and reactions? What would you do? Is this possible? Has it ever happened in this country?”

   “Let’s find out.”

4. Tell students that in small groups, they will be studying a document from World War II, Appendix C. They will have 25 minutes to discuss the questions on the Written Document Analysis Worksheet and complete the worksheet, then regroup as a class to discuss.

5. Divide class in small groups.
6. Display and distribute Appendix C - copies of the Removal Order (relating to Executive Order 9066) (or they can access through the Internet).
7. Distribute copies of the Written Document Analysis Worksheet.

8. Give instructions to students:
   - Work only with the document: no additional research yet.
   - A student from each group will come to the board and write one response to #6A of the Written Document Analysis Worksheet (“List three things the author said that you think are important”).
   - When groups are finished with the worksheet and are waiting for the other students, they can examine the Appendix A and B photos (more carefully) and answer the question—what do they want to know or learn about the events in these photos?

9. Reconvene as a class and discuss comments and answers to the Written Document Analysis Worksheet.

10. Examine and discuss each group’s (#6A) response that they wrote on the board.
    Ask students to explain their responses.

11. Now that the students have seen the two photographs (Appendix A and B) and studied the Removal Notice (Appendix C), ask them what they want to know about the photographs and the document. Write these down. Some of their questions should be answered in the research in Part 2.

12. Display and distribute copies of Appendix D & E photographs.

13. Use the Photo Analysis Worksheet as a guide and discuss Appendix D & E photos as a class,
    (http://www.archives.gov/education/lessons/worksheets/photo_analysis_worksheet.pdf)
    Some details to capture:
    - What do they observe in Appendix D photograph? (assembly, transportation, attire, etc.)
      [Note: Suits were worn instead of being packed into suitcases to maximize space in luggage.]
    - Appendix E photograph: What do they observe? Where was the photograph taken? [Santa Anita – see Boot Camp Glossary].

14. Tell students that Americans were shown the following film in movie theaters around 1942-1943 before the featured film (in the days before television and computers).

15. Before showing the film, write these questions on the board for students to think about as they watch it:
    - What was the central message?
    - How convincing was the message?
    - What were the strengths in communicating the message?
    - What was the mood or tone of the film?
    - What were some words that were effective in communicating the message or convincing you?
    - What was left out of the message?

    (Courtesy of the National Archives and Records Administration), also on YouTube,
    https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=ja5o5deardA

17. After viewing the film, discuss the questions on the board.

18. Tell students that the next part of the lesson will be to look for information that will help them understand what happened. They will also be exploring the issue from both sides, those who were in favor of the incarceration and those who were opposed. As they learn, they should be thinking about their personal opinion on the topic (Essential Question).
Part 2:  2 HRS.  GROUP RESEARCH & PREPARATION FOR PRESENTATION

Note to Teacher:  Students have raised questions during their group review of the primary source documents in Part 1 (e.g., Photo Analysis Worksheet #3; Written Document Analysis Worksheet #6E).  Ensure that their questions are included in one of the topics below that are assigned for research.  Add additional topics as needed.

Instructions to Teacher:
1.  Arrange for student use of computers with Internet access (laptop cart; library; computer lab, etc.).
2.  Display photos of Appendix A, B, D & E prominently for students as a reminder of the Essential Question.
3.  Tell students that they are going to find answers to the questions that they identified earlier (they were put on the board) as well as explore other topics that will help them understand this unit.
4.  Divide students into small groups (or use the same groups from Part 1).
5.  Each group selects or teacher assigns one of the following topics to research and develop into an (electronic) presentation to the class.
6.  Tell students the minimum criteria that is expected in their research and presentation.
   See Appendix F, Rubric for Presentations.
7.  Each person must prepare at least 2 to 4 slides and speak about each one during the presentation.
8.  Remind students that they are finding information that will help them answer the Essential Question, Was the incarceration of Japanese Americans during World War II justified?
9.  After the presentation of their summaries to the class, students will begin developing an answer to the Essential Question (in preparation for Part 3 argumentative essay).
10. (Optional) Require APA or MLA source citations, ref. Purdue University Online Writing Lab (OWL) (https://owl.english.purdue.edu/owl/)

Part 2: 1 HOUR - ORAL PRESENTATIONS BY GROUP
1. Provide note-taking guide for students to identify key words or facts during presentations.
2. Groups make their presentations to the class.
3. Rubrics – See Appendix F
4. Review the Essential Question, “Was the order to incarcerate Japanese Americans during World War II justified? “ and use the board to summarize the Pros and Cons on the topic.
5. Discussion: Compare the Pros and Cons for the incarceration that were generated:
   Use the “True For Who” Visible Thinking routine to investigate truths about some of the perspectives (Pros and Cons) of the incarceration (http://www.visiblethinkingpz.org). See guide below:
   • DISCUSS: Who made the claim? What kind of situation was the claim made in? (What were people’s interests and goals? What was at stake?)
   • BRAINSTORM: Make a list of all of the different points of view that you could look at this claim from.
   • DRAMATIZE: Choose a viewpoint to embody and imagine the stance a person from this viewpoint would be likely to take. Would he or she think that the claim is true? False? Uncertain? Why? Say:
     • My viewpoint is . . .
     • I think that the incarceration was justified because . . .
     • I think that the incarceration was not justified because . . .
     • What would convince me to change my mind is . . .
   • STAND BACK: Step outside of the circle of viewpoints and take everything into account:
     What is your conclusion or stance? What new ideas or questions do you have?
6. Explain to students that Part 3 (essay) will answer the Essential Question and will be a synthesis of the information from the following:
   • the research;
   • the presentations;
   • the analyses of the primary source documents;
   • the government film;
   • class and small group discussions
PART 3: 60 MIN. ARGUMENTATIVE ESSAY

1. Students will write an argumentative essay on the Essential Question, Was the incarceration of Japanese Americans justified? Their notes from the oral presentations and class discussions might be useful resource tools. Students must include:
   - Thesis statement
   - Reasons supporting argument or perspective
   - Quote with explanation
   - 2 reasons to support your position with details (facts, examples, etc.)
   - 1 reason that is opposed to your position with rebuttal or rejection and explanation
   - Conclusion

2. For further class discussion: ASK STUDENTS:
   - If you were a non-Japanese person living in 1942 in California, how do you think you would have reacted to news of the removal of Japanese Americans?
   - What do you think was the greatest influence on the attitudes of non-Japanese in 1942 California?
   - What information or kind of source material has influenced your opinion today?
   - What was the main issue in the decision by the US government to remove Japanese Americans?
   - How do you think Japanese Americans felt at the time of the court rulings (Hirabayashi and Korematsu cases)?
   - Could a forced mass removal under something similar to Executive Order 9066 be carried out today with another group of people?
   - Under what conditions might this be possible?
   - Did we come close to something like this in the early part of this century?
   - Why is this order being criticized as being unjust and unfair?
   - Why was and is this order defended, even today, by some people?

ENRICHMENT:
The story of Gordon Hirabayashi and his court case are chronicled in a biography published in 2014 by the University of Washington Press called A Principled Stand: The Story of Hirabayashi v. United States. Highly recommended for high school and college students.

Incorporate the Visible Thinking routine, “Circle of Viewpoints” (Harvard Project Zero—http://www.visiblethinking.org), which encourages students to consider diverse perspectives associated with this topic. Students brainstorm various viewpoints—either individually, in small groups, or as a class—then prepare a “character” to embody their chosen viewpoints (and hopefully, emotions and feelings of the character’s viewpoint), and finally, share them with classmates. At the end, teachers can lead a discussion with questions such as, “What new ideas do you have about the topic that you didn’t have before?” and “What new questions do you have?”

Research Guantanamo Bay Detention Center and the story of the detainees. Compare this to the experience of Japanese Americans and the World War II American incarceration camps.

Compare and contrast the provisions of the USA Patriot Act of 2001 and Executive Order 9066 as they were passed. Also examine the 1980 review of Executive Order 9066 by the Commission on Wartime Relocation and Internment of Civilians with the increased attention to the USA Patriot Act because of its pending expiration in June 2015.

Host a debate of the Essential Question.
